Thomas Murray announces partnership with ifsam

Thomas Murray partners with ifsam

The partnership will set the standard for fund platforms' monitoring of third-party risk and service quality – a growing area of concern for the sector and across the financial industry. Thomas Murray will work with ifsam to enhance its already well-established Transfer Agency Monitoring programme, initially covering ifsam's global universe of over 300 transfer agents.

Mr. David Dickinson, Thomas Murray's Global Head of Client Relations, said:

We are delighted that ifsam has chosen to partner with Thomas Murray. As the first fund platform to do so, ifsam is demonstrating its pro-active approach towards risk management and an intention to set the standard for third-party risk in the sector. We are confident that Thomas Murray will deliver an outstanding solution, bringing value to ifsam and its clients and creating a blueprint for fund platforms' third-party risk management.

Mr. Dr. Danny Stutz, ifsam's Head of Business Management said:

We are excited about our strategic partnership and the opportunity for Thomas Murray to be helpful to ifsam and its clients and to shape the future of the financial risk management industry. By bringing together the best of both Thomas Murray and ifsam, we look forward to creating new standards leveraging transfer agent monitoring, data analytics and regulatory compliance.
